

Overachiever of the Year Awarded to Strategy Leaders President

Westchester County, NY – (May 3, 2011) – Andi Gray, president of Strategy Leaders, Inc., a business and management consulting firm received the 2011 Overachiever of the Year Award from Westfair Business Publications. The award was recently presented at the 2011 Spirit of Achievement Awards Dinner hosted by Junior Achievement of the Hudson Valley at Tappan Hill Mansion in Tarrytown, NY.

Each year the Westfair Overachiever of the Year Award recognizes an outstanding member of the community for her business endeavors as well as her dedication to creating a positive influence on future generations through community involvement.

“I feel it is important to utilize your skills to educate others and share your expertise with those in the community,” said Gray. “I’m honored to be recognized by Westfair, such a prominent influence in the Westchester County business community.”

Gray founded Strategy Leaders in 1995 and has continued to guide business owners on all aspects of running a successful company. Utilizing her “Six Sisters” system of a well run business, Strategy Leaders has taught clients to grow their companies to two to three times the level they would have been able to achieve on their own. In addition to running her company, Gray is the author of a weekly business advice column in the Westchester County Business Journal, Fairfield County Business Journal and HVBiz as well as the co-author of the book, New Game, New Rules.

Gray’s corporate experience includes over 20 years in business development and strategic planning. She has donated her time and expertise, speaking at a number of organizations including Columbia Business School, Connecticut Venture Group, and the Westchester County Association. She earned her MBA from the Executive Program at Columbia University.
